

DON'T WORRY!

- Sarah: Mary, don't panic! Relax, please! Breathe in! You're in room 107. Simon, Paul and I are there. You can lean on us. Please calm down.
- Wentworth: Mary, don't be scared! You're having a seizure. You know it is going to end. We are going to position you differently. Does anyone have a tissue?
- Sarah: Yes, here. Mary, I'm going to clean your mouth a bit.
- Wentworth: We have called an ambulance. Are you okay, now? Please, bring her a glass of water. Oh my gosh! You seriously got me scared. It is quite terrifying to watch. You don't look frightened, Sarah, do you?
- Sarah: A seizure normally last 60 to 90 seconds. It's painful and quite scary to watch, especially if it is your first time. My mother is epileptic so I know what to do.
- Wentworth: Really? That's good news. I think everyone needs a little break. Please lead Mary to the infirmary. Please rest well.
- Sarah: Come on, Mary. Let's collect your stuff. I'll escort you to the infirmary.

DON'T WORRY!	To look frightened
To panic	To last
To relax	A second
To breathe	Painful
To breathe in	scary
To lean on	especially scared	if
To have a seizure	first
To end	The first time
To position	epileptic
A tissue	What to DO
To clean	'that's good news »
A mouth	little
A bit	A break
We have called (Present perfect simple)	To lead (to)
To bring	The infirmary
A glass	To rest
Oh My Gosh !	well
Get someone + adj	To collect one's stuff
'you got me scared'	stuff
quite	To escort terrifying

HYPNOLANGUE
Learn english faster & easier

Grammar:

In English, we use the negative imperative to give orders in case of a danger or other situations. We omit the pronouns.

The pattern (for' you') is: DO NOT + v -The pattern (for' we') is: LET US NOT + v

The contracted form(for 'you')is: DON'T + v -The contracted form(for 'we')is: LET'S NOT + v

1 / WARNINGS:

We use the negative imperative to give warnings.

Example: Don't cross !

Do not curse please !

Let's not do something silly

2/ ADVICE

We use it also to give advice.

Don't drink alcohol if you drive later

Let's not waste our time !