

HYPNOLANGUAGE
Learn english faster & easier

Animal rights

Sarah: Wentworth, have you seen on the social networks the story of this American dentist who killed Cecil the lion?

W: Yes I did. Isn't awful? Each year, four million animals, primarily minks and foxes, are trapped and killed in the US, all to feed the world fur market.

Sarah: this is revolting. Obviously there are differences between humans and animals, but they do not justify the way we think of, or treat, animals. Why do we insist that right to life, liberty and protection from torture be confined to humans?

W: well I guess that many animal tests are related to pharmaceutical and medical research, so it may be a reason.

Sarah: How can you say such a thing?! I don't see why we should inflict slow, painful deaths on animals to test the safety of household products.

W: I was actually talking about the fact that balancing the needs of people for drugs with the welfare of animals is a complex ethical dilemma. Of course I am revolted by this half a million animals genetically modified in labs for the need of cosmetics or other products than for medical research.

Do you know that studies show promising results in mice of a vaccine approach to treating Parkinson's and similar diseases?

Sarah: well I ignored it, but I really think human should stop experimenting on animals, and find alternatives to animal use and abuse.

GLOSSARY:

Animal rights	The way
To kill	Animal tests
To see/saw/seen	Pharmaceutical
To trap	Medical
To feed	Research
To justify	A reason
To treat	Such a thing
To insist	Painful death
To be confined	The safety
To be related	Household products
To inflict	The needs
To test	Drugs
To balance	Welfare of animals
To be revolted	ethical dilemma
To modify	Labs
To show	Cosmetics
To treat	Studies
To ignore	Results
To experiment	Mice
The social networks	A vaccine
The story	Similar diseases
American dentist	Use and abuse
The lion	Awful
Minks and foxes	Primarily
The US	Complex
The world fur market	Genetically modified

HYPNO*LANGUE
Learn english faster & easier

